"Floydian Slip," a weekly Pink Floyd show produced by Craig Bailey of Shelburne, will begin airing on WBRR 100.1 FM in Bradford, Pa., this weekend.

"100.1 The Hero" will carry the show Fridays at 11 p.m. EST. The station is a 1,650-watt rock station serving the Olean, N.Y. market, the nation's 223rd largest radio market as determined by Arbitron.

Olean is the sixth largest market to join the show's Random Precision Radio Network after Cincinnatti, OH (#29); Spokane, WA (#93); Burlington, VT-Plattsburgh, NY (#143); Myrtle Beach, SC (#156); and Lebanon, NH-White River Junction, VT-Rutland, VT (#186).

WBRR is the latest station to join the show's Random Precision Radio Network, created by Bailey in summer 2009 when he began syndicating the show from his home studio. "Floydian Slip" is currently heard on 34 stations in the U.S., Canada and overseas.

Bailey aired his first episode of "Floydian Slip" in 1989 on Ithaca College's 106-VIC in Ithaca, N.Y., when he was a senior Television-Radio major. He also produced it for Burlington's short-lived WEXP 105.1 FM (Experience 105.1) in 1994, and for 13 years at WCPV 101.3 FM.

In its 20 years, the show has earned mentions in, or served as a resource for, media around the world such as Relix; "The Rough Guide to Pink Floyd"; The Ottawa Citizen; VH-1; The Dallas Morning News; "Comfortably Numb: The Inside Story of Pink Floyd"; "Pink Floyd on Forty-Five"; and MacFormat magazine.
